Charles Dickens (1812-1870) was one of England's greatest writers. Best known for his classic serialized novels, such as Oliver Twist, A Tale of Two Cities, and Great Expectations, Dickens wrote about the London he lived in, the conditions of the poor, and the growing tensions between the classes. He achieved critical and popular international success in his lifetime and was honored with burial in Westminster Abbey.

This dramatization of Dickens's well-loved classic carries with it the familiar flavor of Christmases past and present. The performances are well-handled by the various professionals, most especially

Sir Ralph Richardson. Although the production is shortened so much as to be potentially confusing for those rare listeners who don't know the story, the ancient truths within still come through. Music highlights the party scenes, bells chime as Scrooge walks the London streets, and the ghosts are introduced with eerie (if a little dated) sound effects from the great beyond. Overall, this rendition is charming and nostalgic, effectively delivering the beloved story in a format perfect for our sound-bite society. This version of A CHRISTMAS CAROL is ideally suited to a family listening on each Christmas Eve to come. A.A. © AudioFile 2008, Portland, Maine-- Copyright © AudioFile, Portland, Maine

I grew up on this recording, on LP of course! From 1960 to 1985, My mother, father, and I listened to it every Christmas Eve. I have been looking for a digital recording of this for over 25 years! and just the other day thought, oh what the heck, I'll try again - let's see if there's at long last a CD recording of this production. My search skills having improved, I found this new release of the original recording - amazing cast and amazing production - better than any other I have listened too. All great, great actors! Hope you all will try it out.

I bought this disc of Dicken's "A Christmas Carol" to replace a cassette in my collection that I have been having the pleasure of listening to for a long time. Sir Ralph Richardson and company deliver an abridged performance of the work, done as a radio play of sorts. The recording done in the Sixties is a little dated in the violin sound effects, but the acting makes up for a great deal here. My only complaint is that when the recording was originally released it was done in Two channel bin-aurally, the transfer sounds like they attempted to force it into stereo with a curious sounding outcome. That's why only 4 stars instead of 5. This does not however diminish the performances of the players, or mar the story itself.

I have listened to this rendition every year for the last 40 years - needless to say, this is an indispensable part of my Christmas. I close my eyes and am transported to 19c London. It is magic.

My family owned this on vinyl and played it every year at Christmas when I was young. It's a pleasure to find it on CD that I might continue the tradition.

If this is what I think it is, it is the hands-down best rendition of this most essential of stories. I feel it is better by far than any visual dramatization. When I read the original, I hear the voices of these readers. They are simply irreducible.
