Customer Reviews

Ivory Latta currently plays in the WNBA for the Washington Mystics and is from York County, SC. She is the youngest of seven children and grew up loving sports. In high school, she became the top scorer for men's and women's basketball in South Carolina despite being only 5', 6". She has played basketball professionally since 2007 and has won many accolades during her career. She has learned to never give up!

Finally a book by a professional women's basketball player! It is a fun read for boys and girls. Those brilliant illustrations clearly depict Latta's humble beginnings and their close family ties led to her success. I love the way the story teaches basketball skills, while at the same time, it teaches character. A positive story with valuable lessons! Despite whatever-- never give up!!!

good book 4 all ages

Cute book with wonderful illustrations.

Love the book. You don't have to be a basketball player to enjoy this book. This is something any kid would enjoy.

Creatively written, love the story. All young gals should read this, inspirational.

This book is so cool because the story is so relatable! Kids get to read a story, connect with the feelings of insecurity and fear, and then see how the author actually overcame those same emotions in real life. The dream journal at the end is such a sweet idea too!

This book is amazing!
