"Ready to win the Game of Life?" The Bible talks a lot about training for life as an athlete trains for a race. Some days everything gels and you're in the zone, while other times you feel like you're limping along the sideline. Success in life-just like the sports world-requires maximum effort, dedicated discipline, intense concentration, experienced coaching, and a healthy daily diet. That's what "The One Year(R) Devos for Sports Fans" brings to you. Each of the 365 "training sessions" utilizes the best equipment out there. Hundreds of replays from real-life competitions help you apply winning strategies for following God every day. Your coach? God himself. The playbook? His Word, the Bible. Victory is yours when you train with the ultimate Champion. Runners, take your mark . . .

Kathy Hillman and John Hillman, along with their now-grown children, Marshall, Michael, and Holly, have spent most of their family life enjoying athletic events at the youth, high school, college, and professional levels. Working with students ages six through sixteen led the Hillmans to combine their love of sports with their devotion to God through the writing of Devos for Sports Fans as well as two previous books. The Hillmans are currently involved with both the collegiate world and the sports world and live in Waco, Texas.

Awesome devotional. We are in March Madness right now and the devotionals are timed just right to get my 12 year old basketball over's attention every evening!

Awesome book highly recommend it. Arrived early.

I was searching for a book tying the Bible and sports together and found this book to be a great gift for an athlete.
